When Gasoline Was 6 Cents. Many Faiths, Many Cures. "Smith and Bryan?"—Hardly. Munsey Has Not Sold.

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

If you gamble in oil you are worried today, with oil stocks falling.

Mr. Doheny's big company announces a drop of $11,000,000 in the year's profits. Oil prices are cut. Gasoline drops to 16 cents at Buffalo.

But before automobiles came, Mr. Rockefeller was cheerfully selling gasoline at 6 cents, to clean type in newspaper plants. He will probably prove that money can be made at 16 cents.

Government bonds move to "new high prices," the 4½ per cent bonds selling at 103. That will interest small war time buyers that paid 100 and sold under 90.

It proves that "money is cheap" for stock speculating purposes. Money has been recently as cheap as 2½ per cent. It costs more for money to build a factory, or a barn.

In old St. Paul's church, New York, the Rev. Dr. Bell of Denver cures cripples of many kinds "through the power of God's love."

The police were called to restrain and manage the great throng of unfortunates crowding the church.

Many cripples are said to have thrown away their crutches, shouting for joy.

The power of mind, of faith and of mental excitement is great, and amazing, in its varied revelations. Such "cures" are produced by "laying on of hands," by "absent treatment," by virtue of the power in certain sacred relics.

From the dignified Protestant Episcopalian to the howling voodoo doctor in the jungle, all have miraculous cures to report.

The pity is that such healers lack harmony, each declaring his own brand to be the only genuine miracle—all others imposters, or the work of demons.

In old times kings had the healing power, but they were specialists and "king's evil" was their specialty. You hear rarely of their cures now, but perhaps "king's evil" born of poverty and filth, is dying out.

Soap and water also perform miracles, and there is no relapse.

Various newspapers give "Al Smith and Bryan" as the probable democratic ticket. The Bryan, of course, is not William Jennings, but his brother, the governor of Nebraska.

Such a ticket would considerably disturb W. J. Bryan.

A stronger ticket would be McAdoo and Walsh although it might not delight Wall street.

Active imaginations report that Frank Munsey has sold his New York Sun to Cyrus H. K. Curtis. Munsey has not sold the Sun, nor discussed selling, and would not sell it. He has things to say, well worth saying, and wants a medium of publicity. This is official.

Perhaps, some day, the world will bless the big war, although it did cost 250 billions and 20,000,000 lives.

Poison gas will do more good than it has ever done harm. It has been known to destroy the boll weevil.

And now, in the Ukrain, Trotzsky orders his army flyers to use gas against locusts and field mice.

We could use it here, a heavy variety, to destroy prairie dog colonies, snakes in their breeding places, and rats in city sewers.

Dr. Brill, psychoanalyst, says George Washington was a "Schizoid" and Abraham Lincoln a "Syntonic."

If interested in those words ask your psychoanalyst.

Meanwhile, it would be interesting to have Washington or Lincoln's opinion of a psychoanalyst—of Freud for instance. Who could imagine a baby boy 9 weeks old falling in love with his grandmother?

The government shows a fine model of mail carriers, flying across the continent in twenty-six hours. That will be the regular schedule, beginning on July 1, with night flying.

Railroad men, of whom many are very able, should study that model. It shows what they must soon do or join the dodo and great auk, in oblivion.

The Weather

Coolidge Kills Postal Salaries Boost By Veto

"Extravagance Must Stop" Executive Says in Message; Farm Relief Fades as End Nears.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 7.—The postal salary increase bill was vetoed by President Coolidge today with the declaration that "government extravagance must stop."

It was returned to the senate with a message objecting to the legislation because it made no provision for the raising of the approximately $68,000,000 necessary for the measure.

Approval was given by the president to the provision added to the bill to regulate campaign expenses and the statement was made that he would approve that section if it stood alone.

Conference Gets Bill

Congress was called an hour earlier than usual today for the final drive toward sine die adjournment set by resolution for 7 o'clock tonight.

Disposal of the reclamation measure embodying recommendations advocated by the fact finding committee of the interior department was the principal task on the program in both chambers. The proposal attached by the senate as a rider to the deficiency bill was order into conference yesterday and action was held up in the house pending decision by the conferees whether to report its acceptance as an amendment by that chamber.

Fight for Farm Relief

The farm bloc was all ready today to make a last effort to get action on relief measures, having centered late yesterday on the Bursom bill providing a 35 cent export bounty on wheat and wheat products until September 15, 1925, which it was estimated would cost $15,000,000.

The motion of Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, for the discharge of the committee on audits and control from further consideration of his resolution for continuing the investigation during the recess of campaign contributions and expenses also held privileged status today, with considerable opposition indicated on the grounds that its disposition would consume too much of the remaining time. His fight last night for the discharge of the foreign relations committee from consideration of the resolution to provide $10,000,000 for German relief was lost after several hours were taken up for discussion.

Nogalski Youth Dies at Grandparents' Home

Search for Missing Carson Boy Proves Unsuccessful

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Szymanski of the town of Carson, Portage county, searching for their 15-year-old son, Joseph, who disappeared from their home at Mill Creek on Sunday, May 25, have heard no word of him.

His description was broadcast from the Stevens Point radio station last Saturday and a request was made to inform the parents if the boy was located, but nothing has been heard. The lad left home the Sunday morning he disappeared, to attend services at St. Bartholomew's Catholic church at Mill Creek.

The description supplied of the missing boy is: Five feet six inches tall; weight 150 pounds; light hair. The address of the father is R. F. D. 3, Box 58A, Stevens Point, Wis.

Bandits Flee With Mail From Michigan Station

(By Associated Press)

Hermansville, Mich., June 7.—Two mail sacks, one filled with first class mail and the other with parcel post, were stolen from the depot platform here last night by bandits who escaped in an automobile driven by one of their number.

Police later found the sacks which were ripped open. Most of the packages in the parcel post mail sack were missing and the first class mail was scattered on the ground. The loss has not been estimated and nothing has been seen of the bandits since the robbery.

Federal Dry Sleuths Find Much Booze Near Superior

(By Associated Press)

Superior, June 7.—Five federal prohibition agents and two Superior police detectives swooped down on Oliver, a suburb, Friday night, arrested 11 men and six places and confiscated a large quantity of liquor. Two of the men escaped and warrants were issued for them. The others will be arraigned today before Charles M. Bishop, United States court commissioner, on charges of violating the national prohibition act.

The raid culminated operations of prohibition agents in Oliver during the week. The detectives obtained enough evidence to convict every man arraigned, according to their statements.

Chicago, June 7—Governor Len Small has replied to Sheriff Galligan's request for state troops to be present at Herrin, Ill., during the trial there of the case involving S. Glenn Young, former paid Ku Klux Klan leader in dry raids, by directing the sheriff that it is his duty to protect the peace.

BELGIUM STIRRED BY TREASON TRIAL

WEALTHIEST CITIZEN IS CHARGED WITH HAVING MADE FORTUNE SELLING WAR SUPPLIES TO GERMANS

BY Milton Brunner

Brussels, June 7.—Belgium is having the greatest sensation it has experienced since the Germans invaded the little state. Baron Coppee, the Rockefeller of the country, the great captain of industry, the multi-millionaire, has been haled into court on a charge of treason.

Fancy it—this man who lives in a palace, who has thousands upon thousands of employes, is sitting upon the bench of the accused in the Assizes Court of Brabant!

"Prisoner stand up! What is your name?" demands the stern judge.

"Evence Narcisse Joseph Coppee, Baron Coppee."

"Your profession?"

"Business man."

"Your residence?"

"Brussels."

"Sit down, Coppee!"

Thus begins the first act of a court drama, expected to last two months, so many are the witnesses, so multiple the documents to be gone into.

First Charges Dropped

Shortly after the armistice accusations were formulated against Coppee, but they were dropped for want of proof.

Then the Socialist newspapers took up the cry and just when Coppee was getting ready to sue them for libel, the state itself took new action against the magnate. It was claimed that new documents, left behind by the Germans when they evacuated Belgium, had given the government damaging evidence.

The act of accusation in the present trial consumed three days of solid reading. It consisted of 180 pages of printed text, which set forth the allegations that Coppee kept his furnaces and retorts working full time during the war; that he delivered benzol, coal tar and oils to the Germans by thousands of tons; and that he acted freely, voluntarily and knowingly.

Gave Aid to Enemy

In delivering these materials to the Germans the state claims he furnished war materials to the enemy.

In keeping his forces at work in this way, the state claims he virtually furnished men to the enemy.

The benzol Coppee is alleged to have delivered to the Germans could

Plover has just had one prosecution on a charge of drunken driving and it is understood to be the intention of the village authorities to enforce the law rigorously.

GIRL DROWNS IN DITCH WHEN CAR LEAVES HIGHWAY

RAILROAD CREW RESCUES OTHER OCCUPANTS; ACCIDENTS TAKE HEAVY TOLL IN WISCONSIN CITIES

(By Associated Press)

Menominee, Mich., June 7—Evelyn Larson, 3 years old, was drowned and Kermit Dean, 15, is in a serious condition from loss of blood caused by cuts and gashes received when the car in which they were riding turned over when it hit a heap of sand on a county highway five miles north of Menominee this morning and landed in a deep ditch partly filled with water.

Mrs. Oscar Larson, wife of the Northwestern station agent at Wallace, Menominee county, and mother of the dead child, her brothers, Robert Dean, 20, Theron, 12 and a sister, Ada, 11, were the other occupants of the car. They narrowly escaped drowning in the ditch, besides suffering numerous cuts and bruises. Members of a Northwestern railroad train crew rescued the occupants who were pinned under the car. The railroad runs parallel to the highway and the train fireman in the engine cab saw the accident. The party was rushed aboard the train and hurried to a hospital at Menominee.

The conductor of the train said the lad evidently had tried to obtain a ride on one of the cars. The body was picked up by the conductor after he had heard his cry as the train passed over his body.

Market Commissioner Asks Can Cities Sell Gasoline?

(By Associated Press)

Madison, June 7.—The question of whether Wisconsin cities have authority to purchase and sell gasoline in competition with commercial agencies has been placed before the attorney general's department for official ruling by Edward Nordman, state commissioner of markets, it was learned from the markets department today. On the legal department's ruling will depend the action of a number of Wisconsin cities that have contemplated entering the gasoline selling business, according to officials.

Inquires on the question have come from a number of cities in the state. Superior already has entered into a contract for selling the product, according to reports. Cities in several other states already are carrying on such a move to reduce prices, officials said.

Senate Committee Will Probe Campaign Expenses

LA FOLETTE RESOLUTION ADOPTED TODAY; SUBMISSION OF WALSH REPORT PRECIPITATES FIGHT.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, June 7.—The appointment of a senate committee to sit during the campaigns and investigate the expenses of candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency, congress and other federal offices, was authorized by the senate today.

The proposal was embodied in a resolution by Senator La Follette, Wisconsin, leader of the republican insurgents, and was adopted without a record vote. Senator Borah of Idaho was made chairman of the committee.

Later the bitter issue of the oil scandal suddenly was brought to life again when Senator Walsh of Montana, prosecutor of the investigation, sought the senate's approval for the report written by himself and approved by a majority of the oil committee.

Senator Spencer, who consistently has opposed Senator Walsh, objected to the report, which charges serious irregularities in connection with the negotiation of the Sinclair and Doheny leases by Albert B. Fall.

Jap Cabinet, Defeated in the Election, Resigns

(By Associated Press)

Tokio, June 6—The Kiyoura cabinet resigned tonight.

The resignation of the cabinet has been regarded as a foregone conclusion since its defeat in the recent election in which the Kenseikai party became the dominant factor in the lower house of the diet, though there has been some bitter criticism of the government since enactment in America of legislation forbidding entrance of Japanese emigrants.

However, even before the issue became an actuality, it was generally understood that the ministry headed by Viscount Kiegokiyoura would retire as soon as the festival incident upon the wedding of the prince regent had been completed.

JUDGE ORDERS MADISON PATROLMAN HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER; CASE COMES UP IN SEPTEMBER.

(By Associated Press)

Madison, June 7—Patrolman Patrick Powers, former Madison policeman, was ordered held for trial on a charge of manslaughter by Judge Stolen in superior court here today.

Bail of $2,500 furnished by Powers upon his arraignment on May 15 will stand, it was announced. The case will be called at the September term of court.

"It is clear from the defendant's own testimony that the homicide cannot be justified on principles of self defense," the court said.

"The necessity for the shooting and killing must be determined by a jury."

A change of venue will probably be asked by the defense when the case comes to trial, it was said.

Fourteen Dead Is Toll of Mine Gas Explosion

(By Associated Press)

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Fourteen dead was today established as the toll of the gas explosion yesterday in a mine here after state inspectors and mine workers had made a complete survey of the mine. Three bodies of missing men were located, the last being recovered early this morning. Two men are in a hospital with serious injuries while five are being taken care of at home.

From 50 to 75 orphans and dependents are left by the accident and officers of the United States Workers today set about organizing measures for relief.

Inspectors found that six of the men died from suffocation while three others lost their lives when only 50 feet from safety.

The condition of the mine necessitated shutting down the colliery for a few days.

Robins Build Nest Among Mail Boxes

A pair of enterprising robins have made their home on a revolving wheel carrying eight or nine rural mail boxes at a cross roads on rural mail route No. 5, northwest of the city. N. H. Robinson, the carrier on that route, uses particular care not to disturb the nest, and he says that the owners of the mail boxes use the same precaution, so that apparently the robins will be successful in raising a family on this novel location. A recent examination of the nest revealed four eggs.

MILWAUKEE MAN OFFERS TO HANG FOR MURDERERS

WOULD SELL LIFE FOR $1,000,000 TO BE DIVIDED BETWEEN FAMILY AND TAILORS OF AMERICA

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, June 7.—A letter purported to have been written by Curt Geissler of Milwaukee, Wis., and offering to substitute himself on the gallows for Nathan Leopold or Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks, if his heirs were given one million dollars, was received by Morgan Collins, superintendent of police, today. The letter read as follows:

"I have been reading about the two boys Loeb and Leopold and the wealth of their parents, and I have come to the conclusion that in case of their conviction I will take the place of one of the boys in case they are to be hung.

"If this can be legally arranged and the parents of one of the boys will pay to my heirs one million dollars, then I will be ready to be hung any time the law is ready to call me as there is no glory in life for me.

"I am a tailor, 25 years of age, well, strong, honest and a good citizen. I have worked since 12 years old, and never harmed anyone. The one crime I committed was that I worked hard all my life.

Signed,

"Curt Geissler."

Wants to Help Family

Milwaukee, Wis.—Curt Geissler when found by newspaper men at his tailor shop said he had written a letter offering his life on the gallows to substitute for one of the convicted slayers of Robert Franks. He refused, however, at the time to comment on the incident, but offered to explain it in detail at his boarding place later.

Later Geissler granted an interview.

"Yes, I wrote the letter," he said. "I did it because I wanted to help my family in Germany and the poor tailors of America. I have been out of work and so have other tailors. Their lot is hard and I want to help them. It is my intention that half of the million go to my family and the other half to the tailors. My parents are living in Germany with five brothers and one sister."

No $1,000,000 Defense

Chicago, June 7.—Only such a defense as that to which every human being is entitled will be provided for Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, according to a joint statement issued by the fathers of the confessed slayers.

The boys' fathers have "not the slightest inclination nor intention to use their means to stage an unsightly legal battle with an array of legal counsels and army of high priced alienists in the defense," the joint statement said.

It was the first expression of the two fathers: Nathan Leopold, sr., wealthy box manufacturer, and Albert Loeb, vice president of the Sears, Roebuck company, since the youths were first taken into custody.

Loeb Shifts Blame

All the blame for the murder of Robert Franks is placed upon Nathan Leopold, jr., by his former chum, Richard Loeb, in a confession made by the latter to state's attorney Crowe a week ago and made public today.

"I want to say that I offer no excuse; but if it was not for the support and stimulation of Leopold the crime would not have been committed," Loeb said in his confession.

AN INDIANA STATESMAN

Before the oil and Daugherty scandals were turned up the big fuss in the way of senate investigations at the session now drawing to a close promised to be the contest for the seat of Earle Mayfield of Texas, democrat, alleged to have been elected with the aid of the Ku Klux Klan and excessive expenditures of money.

The oil sensation turned attention the other way and then the Klan captured the state republican machine in Indiana and threw such a scare into Senator Jim Watson, a member of the Mayfield committee, that that sterling statesman has been trying desperately ever since to choke off the investigation. Whether or not there is a just case against Mayfield is probably known to few or none, but with three republicans and only two democrats on the committee there seemed for a while to be at least an even chance that his ousting would be recommended. That would be politics. But then Watson found how the klan rated in his own state, and from defending American governmental methods and free institutions from Klan rule he immediately switched and is now known as the leading senatorial exponent of 100 per cent Ku Klux Klan Americanism.

As a result he is now the klan choice for the vice-presidency: Heaven help us if fate should ever elevate him to the presidency.

Contemporary Comment

WE HOPE IT IS TRUE

Walter F. Brown, the President's representative on the Congressional committee for the reorganization of the executive departments, makes the amazing statement to Mr. Coolidge that as the committee has finished its work he will shortly close his office and resign.

After a diligent search of the records all this morning we have failed to find any precedent for such radical action as closing a Government office. If it has ever been done before, it has escaped our attention. The case is all the more remarkable in that Mr. Brown comes from Ohio, the home of perennial jobholding.

Congratulations are due Mr. Brown for making himself famous by a single stroke of genius—assuring that he carries out his promise. Some day perhaps monuments will be erected to him as the only man who ever closed a Government office. The suggestion that the appropriation may have been exhausted is an unworthy one, for he had but to hold on and seek expense money in the next deficiency bill.

We also tender our congratulations to the President for finding a man, especially an Ohioan, willing to relinquish a job; and lastly and especially to the people of the United States. Under the spur of Mr. Brown's example perhaps another jobholder or two may resign in the future.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

If there was a federal tax on acting foolish we could pay our entire national debt in a couple of days.

How Things Look to THE FARMER

By O. M. KILE

Washington, D. C.—The vote of 154 for and 224 against the McNary-Haugen bill caused a great deal of gloom in the offices of the representatives of farmers' organizations in Washington. They had staked their all on this bill and believed thoroughly that it was the only way in which it was feasible to bring the purchasing power of agricultural commodities back to pre-war level. George C. Jewett, representing the American Wheat Growers Association, Incorporated, one of the leaders in the fight for the bill, has declared that he will do everything he can to get an export bonus for wheat. A bill of this kind will be introduced before Congress adjourns Saturday and there is some indication that it may have the support of the administration. However, it will not be likely to pass for it will not meet a sympathetic reception from the Democrats and the South. Thus the one outstanding bill which agriculture was so intent upon obtaining was denied to it.

The farm organizations are planning to publish the names of the men who voted for and against this measure and to make it an issue between now and November. The American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange will take to the Convention at Cleveland next week a set of resolutions which they wish to see incorporated in the Republican platform. The other national parties will be given the same opportunity as the Republicans to take the action which these farm organizations desire. The first sentence that agriculture requests the party to adopt reads as follows: The "party pledges to take whatever steps may be necessary to bring the purchasing power of agriculture back to normal." This throws down the gauntlet to the parties to virtually put the McNary-Haugen bill in their platforms.

President Coolidge met the champion Boys and Girls' Club Dairy Cattle Judging team of the United States at the White House yesterday and wished them success in their efforts at the Royal Livestock Show to be held in England late this month where they will compete with a similar English team. After spending a few days at the Capital they go to Montreal where they sail on the good ship Dorie together with their leaders, Professor C. R. Rhode, dairy specialist, University of Illinois and L. O. Wise, Farm Advisor, Morrison, Illinois. The lucky boys comprising the team are Donald Williams, Elwyn Folkers and Harold Gaulrapp, all of Whiteside County, Illinois.

The fight against the amendment to the constitution permitting the Federal government to legislate on the subject of child labor has only begun. The resolution has been passed by both Senate and House, but it must be ratified by two-thirds of the states before it becomes a part of the constitution. The farmers have objecter strenuously to this amendment claiming that it is proposed by "child labor fanatics and morbid sentimentalists" who are not satisfied with permitting the states to handle this matter themselves. The American Farm Bureau Federation in the resolution which it presented to the Republican Committee on Resolutions at Cleveland, says; "The regulation of child labor is now a state function and should continue to be so. Many of the states have passed excellent laws upon this subject. Conditions throughout the country vary so widely that any attempt to regulate child labor nationally would be either unsound or inefficient and to the injury of the children. This is true particularly of any Federal effort which might be exerted to regulate the amount of work which should be done by farm children. The farm unit is somewhat different from many other household unit in that it is practically an integral part of the farm and the labor on the farm."

With two-thirds of the states already having excellent child labor laws suited to local conditions it is doubtful whether they constitutional amendment will ever be ratified.

POMIAC FULL-POWERED GASOLINE

IVALINE MOTOR OIL "The Sooner the Better"

Going to Sell Your Car?

It will bring a better price if it has been run on POMIAC, for it will be in better condition than if you have used cheap, cracked gasoline as fuel.

—no doubt about it. POMIAC vaporizes completely, leaves no raw gas to run down past the piston rings to dilute the lubricating oil and let friction wear out the motor's working parts. Its progressive chain of boiling point fractions insures even explosions — your engine doesn't knock and pound and wear itself out.

You get more satisfaction out of your car while using it and more money for it when you sell it. You'll be ahead in cash and comfort by using POMIAC.

"Gimme a Quart of Oil"

Don't say it! — for your motor's sake and your own, insist upon IVALINE — the oil that's always the same: refined by the best processes from the choicest paraffine base Eastern crude.

Then, and only then, can you be sure of keeping FRICTION from destroying the mechanism of your motor and CARBON from coating spark plugs, piston heads, valves and cylinder walls.

IVALINE flows freely in all temperatures and spreads out into a thin, tough film that penetrates every part of the motor. It resists dilution remarkably and gives you ideal lubrication under all conditions.

University Ends Baseball Season With Minnesota

Madison, Wis., June 7—The curtain on varsity baseball for the 1924 season will come down at the University of Wisconsin this afternoon when the Badgers meet the Minnesota Gophers for the second time this season. The locals easily defeated Minnesota at St. Paul earlier in the season and should have little difficulty with the team today.

Wisconsin's baseball season has been fairly successful in the opinion of coaches. Had the Badgers won from Michigan last week, the locals would have ranked at the top of the big ten list. The team now stands third, with Michigan first and Ohio State second.

Christianson, the Badgers' crack hurler, will be on the mound again today, it is expected. Against the Wolverines, the star was hit heavily for the first time this season. Today's game will end Christianson's work with the Badgers as he will graduate this month.

Captain Aschenbrenner also will play his last game with Wisconsin today, as well as several other first string men.

Bobby Jones Loses Open Golf Crown

(By Associated Press)

Detroit, Mich., June 7—America has a new open golf champion today in the person of Cyril Walker, Englewood country club of a suburban district of New York, and for the first time in four years he was not an American.

Walker, who is a native of England, took the crown from Bobby Jones with a score of 297 which was 3 strokes better than that of the southern champion, playing over the Oakland Hills country club course.

The finish was thrilling, Walker having to shoot par golf on the final nine holes to overcome his youthful opponent. Jones shared the lead at the end of the first 36 holes yesterday with Bill Melhorn of St. Louis. Walker tied the Atlantian at the end of the third round, but was still even at the end of the first half of the final round. It was on the home stretch that Jones faltered taking a six on the tenth for the second time and finishing with a 40, and which accounted for the three strokes difference in their scores.

BABE RUTH CLOSE ON HEELS OF ALL BATTING LEADERS

SPRINT OF PAST WEEK CARRIES NOTED SLUGGER INTO FIFTH PLACE; HORNSBY SECOND IN NATIONAL

Chicago June 7.—Babe Ruth, who in 1921 achieved the honor of pelting out 59 home runs, has landed among the leading batters of the American League after a long chase.

The Yankees' star, threatening to challenge Harry Heilmann of the Tigers for the leadership, today is batting fifth place, with an average of .367, a gain of 31 points within a week. He continues to swing his bat with the same effectiveness in driving out the homers, having connected with two the last weeks, bringing his total up to thirteen. The figures include games of Wednesday.

Heilmann Slumps

Heilmann is still the best among the hitters, topping the list with an average of .404. This however, is a loss of 21 points from his mark of the previous week. His scoring efforts were better than those of Joe Harris of Boston and as a result he is leading the scorers with 38.

Ike Boone, the former Southern Association slugger, playing regularly for the Red Sox, continues to hang on Heilmann's heels with an average of .381. Harris of the Red Sox is third with .370.

Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox, failed to add to his base stealing record, but his nine thefts is enough to keep him on the top of the heap.

The hitting of Sam Rice of the Senators was one of the outstanding features. His clouting has been a big factor in placing the Senators at the head of the list in team batting with an average of .299, with Cleveland next with .298 and the Yankees third with .297. Rice went from a mark of .279 up to .338.

Other leading batters: Meusel, New York .364; Cobb, Detroit, .352; Williams, St. Louis .349; McNulty, Cleveland .349; Jamieson, Cleveland .343; Sheely, Chicago .341; Rice, Washington .338.

Snyder Leads N. L.

Frank Snyder, veteran catcher of the New York Giants, has finally overtaken Rogers Hornsby, star of the Cardinals, for hitting honors in the National League. Snyder, in climbing to the leadership, has averaged approximately two hits a game, his average jumping to .408, a gain of 48 points. Hornsby, who held the spotlight almost all season, suffered a 20 point drop and is trailing the New York slugger with .401. Zach Wheat of the Dodgers and George Kelly, New York first baseman, are tied for third place honors with .386.

Frank Frisch of the Giants continues to lead in scoring, his total being 41. Jacques Fournier, of the Dodgers, clouted out two home runs and is showing the way with eleven. The base stealers did not show much activity, George Grantham of the Cubs, breaking past his rivals with eleven.

Other leading batters: Bressler, Cincinnati .358; Frisch, New York .351; Fournier, Brooklyn .346; Young, New York .344; Grimes, Chicago .336; High, Brooklyn .333; Tierney, Boston .331; Grigsby, Chicago .330.

Neun A. A. Star

Neun, the St. Paul first baseman, setting a dazzling pace for the batters of the American Association, boosted his average to .444 as a result of slamming out sixteen hits in his last seven games. He also is leading in scoring, having counted 49 times, and is tied with Christenen, also of St. Paul, for honors in base stealing, with 19 each.

Dressen, the St. Paul third baseman, climbed into third place with an average of .408, while Bunny Brief of Kansas City remains second with .418. Walker of Minneapolis leads in home run hitting with seven.

Other leading batters: Allen, Indianapolis .391; Shannon, Louisville .388; Betzel, Louisville .381; Covington, Louisville .371; Lamar, Toledo .358; Maguire, Toledo .357; Dixon, St. Paul .349; High, Columbus .345; Grimes, Columbus .341.

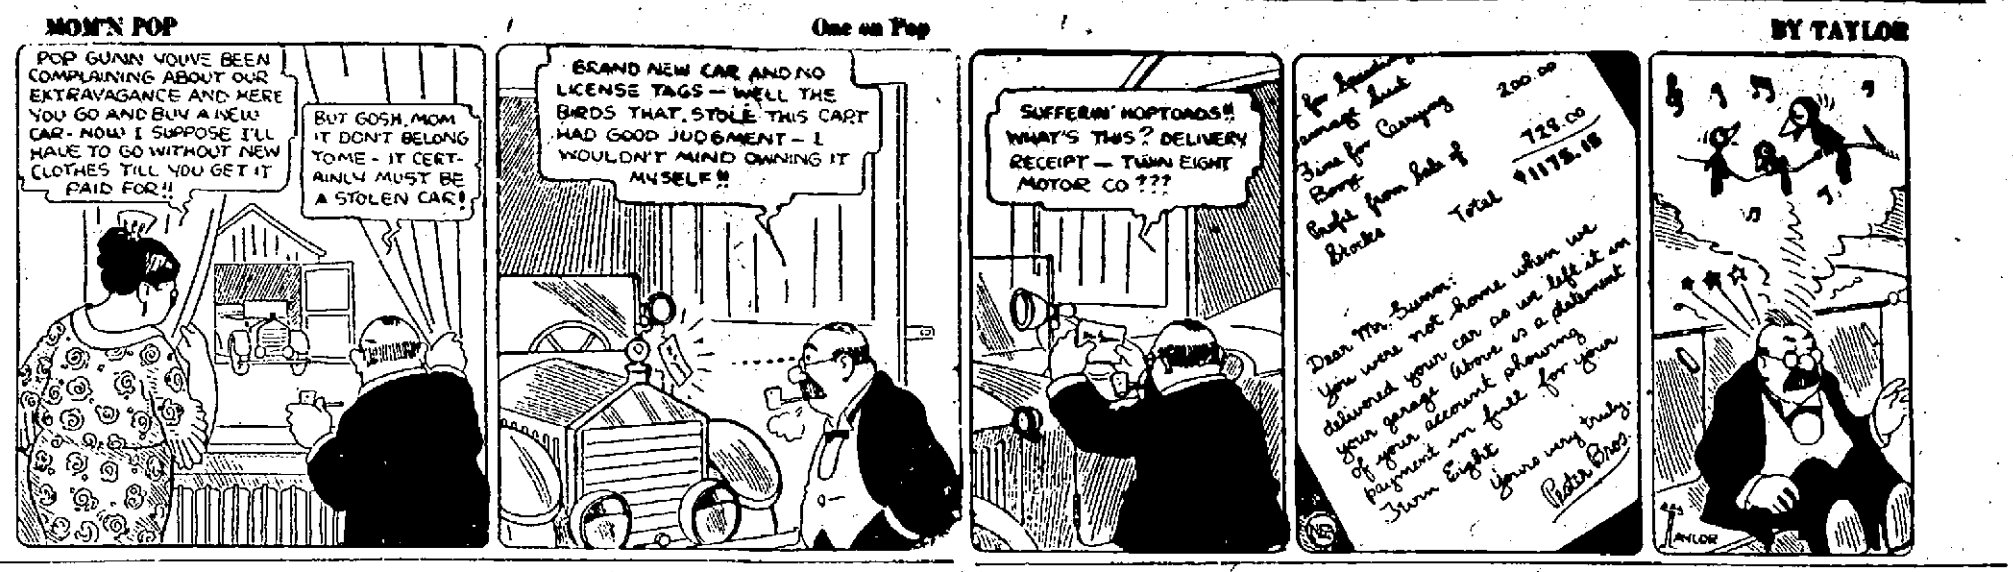
MOM'N POP — One on Pop — BY TAYLOR



The LAND OF FORGOTTEN MEN

by Edison Marshall

Released by NEA Service, Inc. Copyright 1923 by Little, Brown & Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Newhall, Augusta, Ga., flees to Alaska, after being told by Ivan Ishman, Russian violinist, he had drowned Paul Sarichef, Ishmin's secretary, following a quarrel. Ishmin and Peter's wife, Dorothy, had urged him to flee to South America. He joins Big Chris Larson in response to a distress signal at sea, forcing his sea jacket upon him. Their launch hits rocks.

Dorothy receives word that her husband's body, identified by his sea jacket, has been buried in Alaska. She now feels free to receive Ishmin's attentions. But Peter has been rescued by another ship. His appearance is completely changed and he is known as Limejuce Pete. He finds his identity is completely covered. Larson's body occupies his grave.

A last letter sent Dorothy by Pete's effects puts him in a new light to her. She decides to carry his body back to Georgia for burial. Ishmin arranges with Peter's boss for guide and labor.

"But not one of the three you mentioned, Aleck, knows where the body lies. We've got to get some one of Captain Johansen's crew for their main guide."

"And Captain Johansen and his crew have pulled out for Belingham not to return until next season, and besides, the original burial party is scattered to the four winds. Jacks, the apprentice undertaker, is in Siberia. But De long, I've got it. Send one of the papooses down to the docks and tell Limejuice Pete to come up here."

In a few moments Pete's lean form stood in the doorway.

Bradford looked up with the instinctive respect that he had always felt for such a good workman as Limejuce Pete had proven himself to be.

It had been an auspicious day for the cannery when he had hired Pete on the deck of the Dolly Bettis. Although he was a silent, taciturn man to whom none of his close workmen had ever got close, he had learned the fish game in record time and had proved a valuable addition to the force.

"Pete, did't you tell Mr. De Long here that you intended to winter on the mainland?"

"Yes, sir," the blond giant answered slowly. "I was going to take in some grub and a few traps and stick it out till the fish season begins, next spring."

"Well, you've got a queer idea of having a good time, to say the least. Well, we've run into a good thing for you. How would you like to act as a guide for a party of people from the States—a job of two or three weeks, I should judge, in which you could fairly ask guides' wages—ten dollars a day. It would be late September and early October—giving you plenty of time to get out your lines before furs are prime."

"I'd like it mighty well," he assented.

"Well, your the best man for the place. Some people are coming up on the last trip of the Catherine, and we're going to let them board the Warrior—and after they've finished with their busines on the Bering Sea side of the mainland, they'll go on in the Warrior down to Seward. You can pack on your winter's grub and your outfit, and they can leave you on the mainland when they go on down to Seward. As the single survivor of the Vigten you can show them approximately where they want to go."

Pete slowly straightened. His fingers went white to the tips. "What has the Vigten to do with it?" he asked brokenly.

"Nothing, except that the wreck of the Vigten—of course you know the last vestige of her has broken up and vanished—marks also the site of the wreck of the Jupiter. They are going out to exhume the body of that Remittance Man who went down with the Jupiter and was buried on the shore—Peter Newhall was his name. Mrs. Newhall and a couple of other people are in the party."

He thought it an illusion that the tall man in the doorway should seem suddenly pale and stricken, as if in the presence of a ghost. And it was true; the dead had risen for Limejuce Pete.

CHAPTER VI

Dorothy Meets Pete

Even as he wondered at the maze into which fate was leading him Pete was swept with exultation.

It was not that his dreams overleaped themselves, that he was lifted up by false hopes. He knew exactly where he stood, his exact limitations. He knew, first of all, that Dorothy must never know his identity. She must never be permitted to receive the faintest hint of the truth; that the embalmed body in the casket was not that of her husband. Her eternal happiness depended upon that; and her happiness, hers alone—now that full vison had come to him—was the one theme of his life.

Indeed, after that counterfeit of himself in the casket had been unearthed and Dorothy had sailed away, his own fate would not greatly matter. He would vanish into the interior with his traps and perhaps the bitter winter would destroy him; but at least he would have fulfilled his last dream—the only thing that he had ever dared to dream, since his flight from home three years before—and he would bear no ill will. The dark curtains of oblivion could drop over him for all he would care.

It moved him deeply that his wife should make the long perilous journey in his memory, leaving the warmth, the light and gayety that she loved simply to do honor to her dead.

Meanwhile Dorothy made leisurely preparations for the journey. She bought sturdy outing clothes, a heavy sleeping robe in case the search for the grave kept her over night on the mainland, and only the journey's grim objective prevented a certain spirit of adventure. Bradford's telegram, however, urged haste; and as soon as reservations could be procured, she Ivan, and her uncle, a gray, kindly, successful business man of Savannah, departed on the west-bound train. At Bellingham the party boarded the Catherine D, the large freight and pessenger steamer that was used in the fish trade.

She had expected some sort of a disreputable, old tramp steamer that was to be endured from necessity; and she war hardly prepared for the long, spic-and-span deck of the Catherine D. Captain Knight let her occupy what he proudly called the bridal suite; a beautiful stateroom on the upper deck, equipped with bathroom, a great Settee, and every possible device for her comfort.

She had always been a good sailor, and the ten-day cruise to Squaw Harbor possessed real pleasure for her. In the first place it was a complete rest for her tired nerves. She slept long in the morning, ate, simple, well-cooked fod at regular hours, walked the deck with Ivan or with the friendly ship captain, and spent the day at her ease on the long deck.

Sometimes Dorothy thought that he was struggling with something akin to actual fear. He seemed troubled, rather nervous; and it was not like this brave man to be appalled by the natural perils of the journey.

The morning of the eleventh day she wakened to find herself in Squaw Harbor, the first lap of the journey done. After breakfast she went ashore with Ivan to make final plans for the launch trip to the north coast of the mainland.

She was immensely pleased with Bradford's arrangements. The Warrior would carry her straight to the scene of the wreck, he said; then the boat would lie at anchor outside until a dory could be put ashore and the casket unearthed and brought aboard. This accomplished, she and her party would be transported to Seward, whence they could catch the Admiral Watson back to Seattle.

"I've got you three good men for your labor," he told her—with that kindness and courtesy toward strangers that is the tradition of the North. "Your head guide is Pete—he was wrecked on the Vigten and knows approximately where the Jupiter broke up. Then you have Fortune Joe and Nick Pavlof for general labor—packers, we call them—both as good men as I could find."

"I'm sure they will be satisfactory," Dorothy commented. "And what odd names your Alaskans have."

"There are some queerer ones than that, if you just give me time to think of them. Fortune Joe is a native medicine man, and laugh if you like, the things he can do are not easily explained away. Of course, it is some kind of psychic power, but don't ask me what. Nick Pavlof, however, is an Indian of another skin.

"He'll interest you, Mrs. Newhall. He calls himself a priest, and the truth is that he has some sort of a vogue, hereditary claim on the office. You see at one time this was Russian territory, and the entire native population were members of the Greek Church. This Pavlof is part Russian—he is the grandson, in fact, of a more or less discredited Russian priest but the rest of his blood is native. However, the natives accept him, kotow to him; he officiates at funerals and has some sort of a vested right to marry people.

"Pete will be with you until you have the casket safe on board; then he intends to leave the party, take his grub and his traps, and go into the interior for the winter. Wait an instant—I'll bring him in and introduce him."

Pete, waiting outside, had dreaded even as he had longed for this moment.

Though he had thought of little else for weeks he was not quite prepared for the first sight of the slender girl framed by the window and the sea. Here she stood, the same woman he had left, the same witchery in her eyes and her smile.

He could no longer remember that he was Limejuce Pete. He had come in awkwardly fumbling his hat; but now he was staring, unable to speak, risking instant exposure by the white flame in his face. Yet there was no glimmer of recognition in Dorothy's manner. She smiled graciously as always to the lowly, looked with keen interest into his bearded face, then stretched her hand.

Pete bowed awkwardly, then took the proffered hand; and its touch sent a violent electric shock throughout the intricate system of his nerves.

He dropped her hand instantly, then turned to face Ivan. The latter bowed courteously enough, but did not extend his hand.

And Dorothy, who had watched with deep interest, felt a dim, queer, inexplicable stir or resentment.

CHAPTER VII

At the Grave

The Warrior was loaded, not only with supplies for the journey but also with Pete's winter outfit, and the entire party put to sea.

Gloria Swanson
In the Paramount Picture
"The Humming Bird"
A Sidney Olcott Production

"The Humming Bird," the new super-photoplay with Gloria Swanson in the title role, is the offering at the Ideal theatre Sunday and Monday. A consensus of criticism gives this production first place among the Swanson subjects, and gives this popular screen star a wonderful opportunity to show her abilities as an actress. It is a Parisian story adapted from the popular stage play of the same name and Glorious Gloria plays a dual role. It differs so entirely from her usual picture that it is likely that it will be talked about for a long time. In one character she is a gorgeous, slinky and alluringly gowned as ever, and as saucy and pert and deliciously Frenchy as she was in "Zaza." In the other—hold your breath—she plays the part of a boy—an Apache gamin. After you have seen "The Humming Bird" you will have to acknowledge that Gloria Swanson is something more than a clothes hanger.

For Wednesday and Thursday "The Remittance Woman," that strong drama with Ethel Clayton, is to be the bill at the Ideal. "Mary of the Movies" was substituted by the exchange but the picture will positively play this week.

Tuesday's request program at the Ideal will be Mack Sennett's "Down on the Farm."

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Sunday and Monday:—"The Age of Desire" and an "Our Gang" comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday:—Carmel Meyers in "The Love Pirate."

Thursday and Friday:—"East Side—West Side" and Al St. John comedy.

Saturday:—Charles Jones in "The Footlight Range" and Way of a Man."

William Collier Jr. and Mary Philbin in
"The Age of Desire"

Malcolm Trask found his wife and a young man in a fond embrace as he unexpectedly returned home one day.

"Think up an alibi quickly," he taunted with a sneer.

"This is my son," replied his wife earnestly. "I never told you about him before because you would not understand."

There was a supercilious curl to the lips of the youth as he listened. A member of a blackmailing gang, he was there for the purpose of filching this woman out of thousands of dollars.

What he did not know was that in reality he was her son.

This strange tableau is one of the numerous dramatic situations in "The Age of Desire," a First National picture produced by Frank Borzage, which is coming to the New Palace Theatre Sunday and Monday.

It is seldom that a picture carries the truth and accuracy of plot, characterization and background of "East Side, West Side," the Principal Pictures attraction, which comes to the New Palace theatre next Thursday and Friday as an Irving Cummings production. It is a picture which shows that life is just what you make it. It paints accurately and vividly that a young girl can retain her high code of honor—that she can keep her head up and smile the shadows away through a willingness to keep faith with her ideals. The authors, Leighton Osmun and Henry Hull, have drawn a compelling canvas of life in New York City, that Babylon of romance. Here among its crowded streets and its rich contrasts they have exposed a genuine slice of life—a story so accurate and true—so eloquent with romance, sentiment and atmosphere, that it will be accepted everywhere as one of the most human stories ever written.

HONOR INVENTOR OF TYPEWRITER

STORY OF LATHAM SHOLES TOLD OVER RADIO LAST NIGHT; DEDICATE MONUMENT AT MILWAUKEE TODAY

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee, Wis., June 7.—In the many chapters in the romance of invention there is none which surpasses in interest the story of Christopher Latham Sholes, Wisconsin inventor of the typewriter, according to Alan C. Reiley, New York, in a radio address broadcast from Marquette university here last night. The occasion for the address was the unveiling today at Forest Home Cemetery of a monument to the memory of the inventor and the appropriate ceremony connected therewith.

Mr. Reiley said in part:

"Born in Pennsylvania, of New England ancestry, Mr. Sholes removed from that state at an early age to Wisconsin where he spent all the remaining years of his long and active life. He soon attained prominence in Wisconsin' journalism and politics, serving in the state legislature in the capacities of representative and senator.

Was Newspaper Man

"As early as 1839, Mr. Sholes had been editor of the Wisconsin Inquirer, published at Madison. In 1860 he moved to Milwaukee where he had an active career, first as postmaster and later as commissioner of public works and as collector of customs. He also for a long time was editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel. It was while serving as collector of customs that he conceived the idea of the typewriter."

Sholes spent his spare time in a small Milwaukee machine shop, known as Kleinsteuber's endeavoring to invent a machine for the serial numbering of blank books, according to Mr. Reiley's account. Here, Sholes met two other inventors, Samuel W. Soule and Carlos Glidden, who were impressed with the numbering device. Glidden remarked to Sholes "Why cannot a machine be made that will print letters and words and not figures only??"

Worked Six Years

By degrees the idea took shape and in the summer of 1867 the three inventors worked on the new enterprise. Soule became discouraged and dropped out. James Densmore, Meadville, Pa., became interested financially in the plans. After six years of effort, during which nearly thirty experimental models were built and discarded, Sholes produced a practical working model.

In 1873, Densmore brought the final model to the attention of a manufacturer, E. Remington & Sons, then makers of guns in Ilion, N. Y. Later the same year the manufacture of the typewriter began. At Ilion, last September, the fiftieth anniversary of this historic event was celebrated.

Mark Twain is quoted as saying of the typewriter of which he was among the first to purchase "it is a curiosity breeding little joker."

First Operator Present

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Riley said:

"Although it now is more than fifty years since Sholes produced his invention, it is a fact of deepest historic interest that the ceremony here tomorrow will be attended by a number of persons who are intimately identified with the inventor and his work. And it is even more remarkable that among these will be included the first man and the first woman to operate typewriters. The original typist is Charles E. Weller, La Porte, Ind. It was to Weller that Sholes sent his first experimental model for practical typing in 1868.

"The first woman typist, forerunner of millions of her sex, also will be present. She is Mrs. Charles L. Fortier, Milwaukee, daughter of the inventor. She operated one of her father's models in 1872.

Mrs. Fortier relates, according to Mr. Reiley, a deathbed statement of her father, when she told him how wonderfully he had contributed to the progress of the world through the invention of the typewriter. Sholes is said to have replied:

"I do not know about the world, but I feel I have done something for the women who have always had to work so hard. This will enable them more easily to earn a living."

Sholes died Feb. 17, 1890.

He Made First Typewriter

Christopher Latham Sholes, Wisconsin man who invented the typewriter, was honored at Milwaukee today with the unveiling of a monument over his grave. The erection of the monument was financed by public subscription and the campaign was sponsored by the National Shorthand Reporters' association.

Daly building on Second street, estimated to cost $13,000 without electrical and plumbing equipment, and for the Bogoger garage on Oak street, estimated at $6,000. Fun On The Farm Brings 57 Kinds Of Clowns Here

There will be 57 varieties of clowns with John M. Kelley's Fun on the Farm which comes here July 4. Fat clowns, thin clowns, big clowns and little clowns, and all the variations between, assembled from the ranks of the most famous shows in the country, will be here.

Farmers and townspeople alike have been accustomed to get their fun off the farm. Mr. Kelley says, but Fun on the Farm shows that the rural districts are really the greatest theaters in the world and all that is needed is better management to bring out the beauty of farm life, develop its fun and incidentally put business system into the selling end of farming.

Last year 600,000 boys and girls left the farm for the city. The year before 200,000 left the farms. Fun on the Farm also has a lesson for the young folks that think the city is the place for a livelihood. Parents should bring their families to see the show and learn the lesson it teaches. John M. Kelley believes that if you can get people to laugh together you can make them work together. Fun on the Farm teaches both.

Start Trial Of Plover Slander Suit At Point

Stevens Point, Wis., June 7—Trial of suit for $1,000 damages for alleged slander, filed by Basil Prue of Plover against Michael Fabisiak of the same town, was begun in circuit court before Judge Byron B. Park yesterday.

Prue claims that Fabisiak made the slanderous statements on October 14, 1923, on the steps of St. Bronislawa's church at Plover, in the presence of several persons and within hearing of himself. Fabisiak the plaintiff alleges, in his talk indicated that Prue had perjured himself with he appeared as a witness in a recent trial in court here.

The jury impaneled for this case is composed as follows: Walter Nivens, Emma Owen, Hugh Grover, Claude Frost, Milon Church, Tim Welch, Joseph Weisbrot, Cora D. Neale, Alice B. Smith, Porter Sherman, Irving Adams and William Allen. Emma Owen is the wife of County Judge W. F. Owen, while Cora D. Neale is the wife of Prof. O. W. Neale of the Stevens Point normal school.

A verdict for the plaintiff was returned by the jury in the case of Walter Barnesdale of Plover against A. J. Clements of Stevens Point. The jury returned a verdict of $212.08 for Barnesdale and against Clements and found "no cause for action" in a counter-claim which Clements filed.

Minier Promises Campaign Against $500 Exemption

Madison, Wis.—Assemblyman E. B. Minier of St. Croix county, will not run for congress as had been reported but will again enter the race for the assembly, he declared in an interview here.

If elected Assemblyman Minier promises an active fight to repeal the $500 homestead exemption law passed at the last session of the legislature.

"I am going to help unscramble some of the legislation enacted two years ago," Mr. Minier declared. "The Homestead law enacted at the last session provided for an exemption of $500 on each homestead in the state. This places the rural communities at a great disadvantage. There may be 600 homes in a small village or city that would enjoy this exemption, but the township contigious to it might have less than 100 homes and would therefore be placed at a great disadvantage so far as a rural tax is concerned. If the valuation of the township and small city were the same, it would be that part of the burden now borne by the city, would ultimately shift to the farmers. I think it a very vicious law and I am going to help bring about the repeal of this law, because I think it a great disadvantage to the farmers of the state."

BLAINE PROCLAIMS JUNE 14 FLAG DAY

URGES DISPLAY OF EMBLEM AND PUBLIC EXERCISES IN MESSAGE URGING OBSERVANCE

Madison, Wis., June 7.—Flag Day, June 14, was proclaimed today by Governor Blaine. He urge da general display of the flag and appropriate exercises in public places. His proclamation in part follows:

"On June 14, 1777, Congress enacted the law that gave us our national flag, and that day we designate as Flag Day. It is the birthday of our flag and we celebrate it each year. Into our flag's gracious folds are woven the story of the birth and growth of the nation, with all our national ideals and aspirations.

"Our flag is symbolic. Each stripe and each star sends the memory back to an honorable page in history. The red and the white and the blue thrill our hearts with lofty and patriotic ideals of courage, purity and loyalty.

"When we look upon our flag and think of what it means we cannot fail to dedicate our lives anew to its service. Then personal honors and personal gains pale into insignificance and we are one with the heroes and the patriots and all the noble men and women who founded this nation, with their successors who preserved it in glory unstained.

"Therefore, I, John J. Blaine, Governor of Wisconsin, designate and proclaim Saturday, June 14, as Flag Day, and recommend that there be a general display of our flag and that our people hold appropriate exercises."

be used not only for the manufacture of asphyxiating gases to be used against Belgian and allied troops, but also for the manufacture of the explosive for millions of shells used against the allies.

The state admits that the Germans could have requisitioned the materials manufactured by Coppee, but alleges that he intensified his production, perfected his methods and increased his plant.

Offers Defense

Not only does the state charge that the Coppee deliveries were used in making poison gases and shells, but also in running airplanes and submarines. Thus, it claims, the Germans saw their military power increased by reason of Belgian benzols.

Coppee has already indicated part of his defense:

FIRST—That the Germans were all powerful in Belgium and could requisition anything they pleased, enforcing its delivery.

SECOND—That deliveries he made were supposed to remain in Belgium for the benefit of Belgians.

THIRD—That Count de Brocqueville, who was Belgian prime minister at the time, authorized him to trade with the Germans, as the Belgian population could not be allowed to die for want of work.
